

From: Heiselfluflu@cs.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/21/02 11:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think punsihing microsoft for it's success is not only bad but it is also evil. Microsoft has gotten where it has because of smart business practices.

It wants its product in all hardware is that evil? you say it is. I don't think so they don't force one company to use it's product. When I write force I don't mean pressure I mean with guns. Thats what the U.S government(all governments) does when it doesn't like what a company does. You claim to help the consumer but you are frauds. If people say they that they have the right to a product without microsoft products they're wrong. They have a right to a trade but they don't have a right to force a company to make something the way they want it. If they don't want micfosoft on there they'd have another operating system with less support(no software would work on it) or the manufacturer of the PC will have to make it's own. Any body can download another operating system or another browser too. Thats including netscape. The people who say otherwise just want to see a successfull company paralyzed. They hate main stream business and microsoft is the most main stream. I urge the justice department to not punish successful business. It's a lie to say your punishing bad business practices but it's not that at all. All governemts support one business or more who stays a monopoly by the force of guns like the U.S postal service. The U.S government is very hypocritical. People clamor for consumer rights but what about producer rights. I see microsoft and other sucessfull companies to be like parants. They support us and feed us yet like children we don't appreciate that and what's worse we put guns to their heads and make them do what we want. Can the reader do that to their parants? I think not. So what is microsoft it big right now. Can you honestly say another company want make a better more main stream operating system that anybody could use? The justice department has not right what so ever to break up a monopoly. If it's in the name of the people to break up companies then people want must demand sacrifice. Well if they want to sacrifice companies for the public damn the justice department and damn the public.